A Habit Hard To Break

PRICE, WAGE and other government controls are being removed as rapidly as possible. We are said to be headed back to a free market, competitive economy. This move for the time being appears to have the support of the people, which is a wholesome indication. The philosophy of the free market is inseparable from the philosophy of free government.

For years the people have been told by bureaucratic planners that controls can protect consumers against inflation — which they cannot do. Every effort has been made by many top politicians and government officials to create distrust of the free market which has given the United States the finest production and distribution system the world has known. It is a great tribute to this system and particularly to retail distribution that it has been able to function for such a long time under a mountain of anti-competitive, anti-free market controls.

Today controls are being removed, but we should not forget that they are being removed while activity is high and people are reasonably content. We cannot forget that there is still a $260,000,000 public debt to reckon with, and that for most of the time during the past two decades we have been supported by government deficit financing and war spending. In plain words, controls and the philosophy of political dictatorship that they represent are being thrown out with the approval of the people, but there has been no test as yet of renewed faith in the philosophy of a free economy. Bracketing of prices and wages with "floors and ceilings" by government decree is like the dope habit. It is hard to break.

Getting Results

SHORTLY BEFORE the long-needed job of scrapping price controls started, the New York Times ran an interesting editorial under the title "Good News for Housewives." It said "The law of demand and supply, it would appear, is in process of accomplishing something that never was achieved by the post-Korean price control legislation. It is opening to restore the beefsteak to the family dinner table. Not many weeks ago the retail price of round steak had stabilized at around $1.05 a pound. Today the 'regular price' throughout the country is 95 cents a pound."

This newspaper went on to point out that many beef cuts are selling at much less than this, and continued, "The lower prices for beef reflect pressures from both sides of the demand-supply equation. For on the one hand prices had reached levels that were calculated to induce consumer resistance (which is to say, less active demand). On the other hand the cynical expansion of beef supplies has continued without interruption. The beef cattle population, which had risen from 76,830,000 as of January 1, 1949, to 88,062,000 over three years later, has maintained its growth pattern through 1952. Official figures place the probable total as of January 1, 1953, at between 92,000,000 to 93,000,000, which would represent a new all-time high."

There is nothing mysterious about the workings of the supply and demand system. Generally speaking, prices tend to rise when demand outruns the supply of a commodity—while prices tend to decline when the supply balances or exceeds the demand. It is, therefore, to the direct interest of every consumer that maximum production of all commodities be encouraged. And maximum production, it should never be forgotten, it attained only in a free, competitive market.

Here's The Low Down From Hickory Grove

Friends and countrymen—readers of these intellectual gems of heavy pondering—I come to you today with an idea that with the ball rolling now in the right direction, and while the iron is hot, the time is ripe to tap on the shoulder your mayor, your governor, your school board. Tell 'em to take a squint at Mr. Ike and note how he is getting 3 cheers from his supporters to squeeze out the knick-knack from Govt.—the fundamintalities that are wonderful and pleasing to the dames and guys who eat high and plentiful as they cruise the land as Govt. supervisors and such, but for the simple and trustful taxpayers pick up the check.

If 48 governors and 10 or 20 thousand mayors will catch on—are as smart as they pretend—and if they choose to be re-elected, they will start trimming sail—there is a big blow coming up from the starboard. They are courting disaster if they pay no heed. Fine tooth combs need to be run through all proposed budgets—now.

Lots of governors and such who pass the buck on high taxes and who say it is all the Federal Govt.'s baby—won't have a leg to stand on when Kansas like once really gets to bearing down. But there is no harm in that won't be over any harm—Brack-on Lee, of Utah—he never did lean on the Potomac treasury. I doff my new fedora to him.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERRA.

POSITIVE RELIEF FOR FARM FAILURE

Putnam County Farmers See Dairying Answer To Most Important Problem

(By W. TAP BENNETT, Director, Agricultural Development Department, Central of Georgia Railway)

The transformation of an entire county from badly eroded and worn-out soil, devoted entirely to cotton production, to fertile improved permanent pasture lands supporting a thriving dairying industry has been accomplished by farmers in Putnam county, Georgia. And all of this has been done during a period of less than fifteen years.

Putnam is one of the smaller counties in the state with an area of some 331,000 acres, of which 115,533 acres comprise 677 farms, with 100,521 acres and operated by renters. With a total population of approximately 8,500, of which 3,500 are white and 5,000 are negroes, 9,500 people live on farms and almost 80 per cent of these are engaged in dairy farming. Four hundred seventeen farms in the county have electricity and 245 have telephones. It is said that there is not a farm in the county, of 100 acres or more, on which there is not at least one running stream.

Prior to development of the dairying industry in the county, much of the land in Putnam county was classified as marginal or sub-marginal, with many badly eroded areas. Erosion has been controlled by soil management and soil-building practices, largely by converting from row crops to pasture lands and the county is now recognized as having some of the best developed and most profitable pastures in the state.

There are comparatively few tenants and share-croppers in the county. Most of the dairymen own their farms and perform the larger part of their own labor. Most of the county's farmers are operating on a cash basis, but where credit is needed the two local banks and farm credit agencies readily supply any needed assistance. The standards of living of most farmers in the county is above average, and with increasing cash income from their dairying operations, living conditions continue to rise.

County goals set for 1953 include improvement in quality of livestock and dairy products; artificial breeding of livestock; more improved pastures; production of adequate food supplies; home improvement, and food preservation.

What has been accomplished by Putnam county farmers in the improvement of their soils and the raising of their standard of living can well serve as an example for many other areas.

RED CROSS CAMPAIGN NOW IN FULL SWING

Slightly above 150 volunteers are working with the 1953 Bulloch Red Cross Fund Campaign, according to Francis Allen, the county chairman. Chairmen in each of the communities have been appointed and they have enlisted the assistance of others in an effort to put Bulloch over the top. Mr. Allen makes a plea for every person to contribute liberally when approached by these volunteer workers. "Please keep our main line of defense strong by supplying money for processing blood for use by our troops in Korea."

"Planned Lighting Pays in Many Ways"

Says Dr. S. L. Taylor, Manchester Druggist

"Georgia Power's lighting engineers planned the lighting system for my store and really opened my eyes," reports Dr. Taylor. "The first thing I saw was the store's improved appearance. Then I realized how much easier it is to work under light that's really comfortable. My customers like a well-lighted store. My sales show that."

It's a pleasure to provide our customers with extra services that really count. Last year our lighting engineers planned 890 lighting systems for stores, industries, schools and churches—improvements that add up to better looks, better business, better living.

Want the benefits of better lighting in your business? Let one of our lighting engineers advise you. His help is free.

... more reasons why FLORENCE-MAYO Patented Air-Conditioning TOBACCO CURERS are used in more barns than any other make

A Typical Florence-Mayo Installation—No Flues—No Stacks.

★ FOR THE 17 YEARS in which we have continuously manufactured curers, it has been our policy to HELP the tobacco farmer cure tobacco better and easier by giving him truthful and full information—not only about the Florence-Mayo Curers, but about all curing equipment in general.

★ THE CAPACITY OF AN OPEN FLAME BURNER—the type used in tobacco curers—is determined by the diameter of the bowl and height of the chimney. The amount of heat developed is determined by the amount of oil burned under normal operating conditions. Florence-Mayo flame-resistant, self-sealing burners are about 20% larger than those used in other makes of open-flame unit curers. This means that Florence-Mayo curers will deliver 20% more heat, yet Florence-Mayo patented Air-Conditioning Tobacco Curers cost no more than curers using under-size burners and no air-conditioning.

Farm Bureau Activities

(By BYRON DYER)

Farm Bureau programs should have lots of members participating in them and provide a few laughs, Jesse N. Akins, president at Warnock, thinks.

Following up this line of reasoning, Mr. Akins and his group put on one of the most hilarious programs last Wednesday night at their regular meeting the community chapters have yet tried. They called it the spring style revue. Ben Smith, as Billy Burke, was master of ceremonies, and Frank Rushing as Ethel Smith was pianist.

Mr. Akins was dressed and acted the part of Margaret Truman; Billy Joe Deal played the role of Betty Grable; Ben Barwell took the part of Jane Russell; Otis Groover had little trouble in playing the part of Kate Smith; Barney Rushing duplicated the Latin part of Carmen Miranda; the drippy role of Zasu Pitts was played by Herman Rushing; Ivy Wynn replaced June Haver; Harry Freeman showed the group how Virginia Mayo looked; Lester Martin brought to the stage Gloria Swanson; Joe Hodges presented the talents of Marilyn Monroe; W. E. Webb, effectively presented Joan Crawford, and last in the line but artistically presented was Billy Simmons as Mae West.

Mr. Akins' singing and dancing as well as ability to act won first honors, according to Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Whitehead and Mrs. Felix Parrish, the judges. The entire group took top honors according to the response of the audience. During the Warnock business session the group voted to invite H. L. Wingate and Mrs. Troy Rucker, state presidents of the Farm Bureau and Associated Women, to their August meeting.

Ogechee made a study of the habits and methods of controlling the white grubby beetle Tuesday night and the ladies flower arrangement.

Mr. Whitehead, who is in charge of the control work of the beetle in this area, led the discussion on beetle control and presented a motion picture on how the pest works. Mrs. W. H. Moore, economics teacher at the Laboratory High School, led the discussion with the ladies and presented a motion picture supporting the theory back of artistic flower arrangements.

J. R. Kelly, the Ogechee president, asked all those who did not plan to plant their peanut allotments to please return them to the PMA office so they could be given to some grower that would plant them this year.

Mr. Kelly also reminded the group that tobacco insurance sign-up closes March 31, and to make certain they did not let the deadline catch them short.

The Sinkhole Farm Bureau reviewed the progress of the rural telephone program Thursday night and saw an entertaining motion picture of Central America rubber activities.

All of the chapters planned to select their queen and talent contestants at their April meeting.

Between Us..

BY RUTH BEAVER

Dot Darby drove her grandmother out to Texas to visit Jewell Watson Baker, but little did Mrs. Watson think when she was planning her trip that she would appear on television before she came home. Each week in Houston they have a radio program that invites housewives to cook a meal before the television audience. After the meal is finished the person at the station is served the meal for their lunch. The most unusual dish prepared and one of Mrs. Watson's specialties was sweet potato biscuits. However, the whole meal consisted of the biscuits, baked chicken, rice and gravy and a vegetable. When you think that Mrs. Watson will be 77 in July, do you wonder that she was all excited over being chosen to appear on the program? They are having a wonderful visit, and Jewell's friends are not letting them have a dull moment. Marilyn Nevils is wearing a beautiful ring on that third finger, left hand. It is to be an early summer wedding for Marilyn, and already she is busy making plans and choosing clothes. Friday afternoon Statesboro will be proud to have the Pembroke Garden Club come over to our town and see the lovely yards. However, their main trip will be a visit to Georgia and Frank Williams' beautiful place out from town. This is certainly one of the show places in the area and they will be guests at a little informal party Cora is having for them. Sue Proctor cannot boast a garden at her place out from the city yet, but she certainly has one of the show places as far as the house is concerned. She and Frank finished their yellow brick home and moved in during the late fall, and it is one of the most attractive places built here recently. The home is across from the most attractive place built here recently. The home is across from the most attractive place built here recently.
